CONDOLENCE MESSAGE

It was very disheartening to hear the recent sad news about the earthquake in China, the bomb blast in India and the cyclone in Myanmar where many innocent people have lost their lives without reason. I feel much sorrow seeing such miserable conditions.

These many tragic events have caused tremendous suffering in different parts of the world. The uncertainty of our world today is due not only to natural calamities but also to terrorism, war, and conflict. We should always remain aware of other beings and our shared existence in order to overcome such disasters.

Practitioners of different faiths have contributed their services and dedicated their prayers for the victims of these disasters. I, too, would like to express my sympathy to those victims by sharing my sorrow with their family members and dedicating my daily prayers for their good rebirth.

Extending support and contributions to the remaining bereaved families and to those still suffering, as well as dedicating prayers for the victims is utterly essential at the present moment. I therefore urge all our Dharma practitioners to become involved. Your dedication and activity will be greatly appreciated.

With dedicated prayers,
