Directions: Complete the diagram. Write a summary and draw picture for each part of the plot.

The diagram is a worksheet for plotting a story arc. It consists of five vertical columns, each representing a stage of the story:

- Exposition: The first column on the left, containing 15 horizontal lines for writing.
- Rising Action: The second column, containing 15 horizontal lines for writing.
- Climax: The third column, the tallest in the diagram, containing 15 horizontal lines for writing.
- Falling Action: The fourth column, containing 15 horizontal lines for writing.
- Resolution: The fifth column on the right, containing 15 horizontal lines for writing.
